PERSONAL UMBRELLA INSURANCE

Allied Insurance

a Nationwide® company
On Your Side®

Your mom always said, "Don't forget your umbrella." While she was talking about the weather, the same is true in life. If you get sued and don't have enough coverage, almost all you own may be fair game. A personal umbrella policy from Allied could give you the peace of mind you're looking for.

Looking out for you

Nobody wants or expects to be sued. But if you're held personally accountable and legally liable for certain injuries or property damage, we can help you be prepared. With personal umbrella liability (PUL) insurance from Allied you can give yourself the extra coverage you need. We've been providing professional, personal service for more than 75 years. And we use our experience to help you choose a policy that's right for you and your family.

Understand the risks

Today, the courts are awarding larger amounts than ever before in personal liability cases. The best way to be ready is with a PUL policy. But it also helps to understand some of the reasons a person could sue. You could be legally liable for a number of things, including:

Auto ownership

Car accidents, despite contributing factors such as weather, unfamiliar roads, or driver experience.

Home ownership

Accidental falls on your property, swimming pool accidents, or home playground mishaps.

Personal activities

Libel and slander or invasion of privacy.

Make sure you're prepared

Our PUL policy was designed with your best interest in mind. Take a look at some of the advantages that an Allied PUL policy offers. First, we've made it affordable so that protecting yourself doesn't mean going broke. Whether you're found guilty or not, your PUL policy may provide payment for Allied to find you an attorney and for legal expenses incurred in your defense—even when it's not provided in the liability coverage of your auto and homeowners protection
